

Maternity

Session Guide

What to bring

There is a large range of maternity gowns made specifically for maternity photography in studio for your use. Please bring nude coloured underwear and a nude strapless bra with a sweetheart neckline for use under the gowns. If you would like to be photographed in lingerie, please bring this along with you as well.

Professional hair and make up is included in your session. Please have your hair and face clean, and have neat nails with neutral or no polish.

Fine Art Nude

Please let me know prior to the session if you would like to include fine art nude portraits into your session. You don't have to be completely nude for the photos, you can wear a nude coloured g-string which I will then edit out, if it makes you feel more comfortable. In preparation for these portraits, be sure to exfoliate and moisturise your skin.

Posing

I will clearly guide you during your session.
I know the most flattering poses to help you feel comfortable and look your best.

Partners and children

Partners and children are more than welcome to be included in your session.

I will generally shoot the family portion of your maternity session first. For younger children this will give the opportunity for your partner to take them out of the studio while we finish your session.

For outdoor sessions, the session is more casual and we are led by your kids

Have fun!

This is all about celebrating this exciting time in your life. I want you to feel gorgeous and enjoy the process. If there is anything else I can do to help make this happen, please let me know xx.
